

Dr. William Larkin Lecture Series

Mission Statement:
To use education to address and curtail overt and systemic racism, sexism, and xenophobia influencing healthcare access, delivery, and outcomes.

About William Larkin, MD: The late Dr. Larkin (1934–August 3, 2020) was a general and vascular surgeon and the first Black physician to have staff privileges at Baylor University Medical Center. That milestone occurred in 1968, the beginning of his distinguished career in medicine. BUMC’s Medical Staff created this lectureship in September 2020 to honor him, his contributions and his legacy.
